

Trading Analyst Crude Oil – Brightoil, Singapore

- Support Trading business to realize and maximize value through the use of decision modeling and analytics
- Develop, implement and validate predictive models, exploratory data analysis / mining or other analyses across the products/market
- Build and manage the global oil supply/demand database.
- Develop specific analysis/reports assigned by trading benches.
- Work with trading benches to develop trading strategies.
- Generate regular reports to senior management, trading benches, sales team
- Develop models to support different trading products/markets
- Effectively communicate business benefits of analytics and models to business and see to the implementation of these models to realize actual commercial benefits.

Requirements

- Degree holder with at least 5 years' of working experience.
- Relevant experience in energy markets with exposure to refineries and energy trading is preferred.
- Analytical mind with sound business insight, excellent communicator (verbal and written), highly meticulous, and self-motivated
- Strong PC skills and database familiarity; MS Office applications, including advanced spreadsheet, and skill in VBA programming is an added advantage.

Interested candidates with relevant experience please forward your resume to hrsg@bwoil.com